Ira Daniels

Well, and of course, we ran on what they call Highway Post Offices too, I guess you’re aware of that.
INTERVIEWER: Yeah.
ID: I ran on several of them when I was a substitute. Now when you’re a substitute, you know, you’re a substitute to be called out anytime. A lot of times you’re notified ahead of time because the guy’s taking off, they’re regular people, taking off. And I ran on from one from Knoxville to Nashville, and Nashville to Owensboro, Kentucky, and that’s the two, they called ‘em HyPOs, Highway Post Offices, and that was an adventure. You had to maintain your balance plus work mail. Some of ‘em roads were very curvy. And, but that was an experience.